Introduction & Minds-on learning

PART 1: Vocabulaire et introduction

Part 1 includes a vocabulary list of 10 words related to parrots. This first part of the lesson also includes a general introduction to the 300 species of parrots. The main body of the lesson will focus primarily on 3 species of parrots: The African grey parrot, the cockatoo, and the macaw.

PART 2: Le perroquet africain gris (The African Grey Parrot)

The African grey parrot is one of the most intelligent animals in the world. It can learn hundreds of human words and learn to solve many different types of puzzles. Part 2 includes information about this fascinating species, and focuses on an African grey parrot named Socrates (spelled Socrate in French)!

	PART 3: Les cacatoès (cockatoos) Cockatoos are some of the most energetic and adorables animals in the world. This section briefly presents two birds in the cockatoo. The smaller of the two, the cockatiel (la calopsitte élégante), is a highly energetic little bird that can be easily recognized by the distinctive red circles on its cheeks. The larger species, the white cockatoo (le cacatoès blanc), is a highly curious and inquisitive bird that enjoys exploring and at times making mischief! This section very briefly presents a white cockatoo named Max. PART 4: L'Ara (the Macaw) Part 4 is focused on the Macaw (L'Ara) which are some of the most stunning and beautiful birds in the world. They are the largest flying parrots in the world and can measure up to 1 metre in from head to tail. Part 4 also includes a brief conclusion to the entire reading, raising the question of the destruction of natural habitats and the ethical considerations of keeping parrots in captivity.
	PART 5: Reading comprehension questions (Translated) <ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. What sound does the white cockatoo Max enjoy imitating for fun? 2. In your opinion, do parrots easily adapt to life in captivity? Provide an explanation to support your answer. 3. What type of parrot is Indigo? 4. How does the parrot Socrates demonstrate that he is very clever? 5. According to the reading, why do so many parrots feel lonely in captivity?
